Kjære kolleger

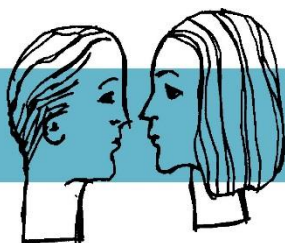

På denne tiden av året, er vi alle spent på å høre utfallet av våre søknader til de ulike finansieringskildene. Mandag hadde Kreftforeningen årets utdeling til kreftforskningsprosjekter, og vi gratulerer Martha og Jim med nye tildelinger. Tildelinger fra Helse Vest og Norges forskningsråd kommer i slutten av november/ tidlig desember.

Mange av oss går inn i en hektisk periode med innlevering av eksamensoppgaver og eksamensavvikling. Takk til alle dere som bidrar til at denne perioden forløper så bra som mulig.

Vi vil også ønske Heidi Anette Espedal velkommen som ny fakultetsdirektør fra og med 1. januar 2018. Hun jobber i dag som fungerende direktør ved forskningsadministrativ avdeling.

Det nærmer seg raskt jul, og vi minner om julefest for instituttet fredag 1. desember. Tradisjonen tro etterfølger julefesten HMS -dagen. Sett av dagen og kvelden til hyggelig samvær med kollegaer. Lenke til påmelding til julebord finner du i denne utgaven av nyhetsbrevet.

Beste hilsener,
Mathias

Nye publikasjoner ved institutt for biomedisin

Når dere publiserer artikler, vennligst send en epost med referansen til kommunikasjonskoordinator Margarethe Bittins. Alt vil nevnes i nyhetsbrevet, og vi kommer til å annonsere de mest spennende funn på nettsiden vår.

Vi gratulerer Gry og Jim med artikkel publisert i JAMA Internal Medicine

Forskerne oppdaget at bruken av det blodfortynnende medikament warfarin (marevan) er koblet til lavere risiko for ny kreft hos pasienter over 50 år. Dette er en observasjonsstudie ved hjelp av norske nasjonale registerdata. Bruk av warfarin var assosiert med lavere risiko for sjenerell kreft og av tre av de vanligste kreftene (prostata, lunge, bryst) sammenlignet med ikke-bruk av warfarin. Aftenposten, Bergens Tidende, The Sun og The Daily Mail rapporterer også om dette spektakulære funn.

For alle som er interessert i å høre mer: Gry Sandvik Haaland, førsteforfatter av artikkelen, kommer til å holde disputas den 17. November.

Nevral e Nettverksgruppen: et utstillingsobjekt om netthinnen ved VilVite

Europeiske forskere fra «Innovative Training Network switchBoard» åpnet et sitt utstillingsobjekt på VilVite på mandag. Rémi Fournel, ph.d.-kandidat under veiledning av Meg Veruki, er en av 15 ESR som designet og utviklet denne utstillingen sammen med formidlere på VilVite. Utstillingen et puslespill med "brikker" av nevroner i netthinnen. De er koblet til en skjerm som vil vise deg hvordan visjonen din ville forandre seg, hvis noen av nevronene manglet.

Universitetet i Bergen introduserer et nytt tidsplanleggingssystem

Universitetet i Bergen kommer til å lansere et nytt tidsplanleggingssystem for de tekniske og administrative ansatte. Min Tid (My Time) er en tidsplanmodul på vår HR Portal. Det er en digital løsning som bør være lett, tilgjengelig og grei å bruke av alle tekniske og administrative ansatte. Det medisinske fakultetet er planlagt å introdusere Min Tid i februar 2018.

Studieaktuelt

Prøve på OSCE-eksamen ble gjennomført 8 november

Den 20. juni 2018 skal den første ordinære OSCE (Objective structured clinical examination) gjennomføres for medisinstudenter i 6. semester. OSCE er kort fortalt en praktisk stasjonseksamen som skal teste studentene i ferdigheter og kunnskaper de har fått undervist i løpet av studiet. Hovedfokus er på praktiske, kliniske ferdigheter, men også basal kunnskap kan testes ved denne eksamensformen.

Onsdag 8. November ble det gjennomført en siste pilot på OSCE, og institutt for biomedisin bidro denne gang med en oppgave i sirkulasjonsfysiologi. Det ble kjørt tre parallelle sløyfer med identiske oppgavesett for rundt 40 frivillige studenter. Tine Veronica Karlsen var oppgaveansvarlig, og med-eksaminatorer på oppgaven var Martha Enger og Frits Thorsen.

Det ble testet ut et nytt datasystem for scoring og behandling av resultater på eksamen, og på grunn av tekniske problemer ble starten utsatt, men da eksamenen først kom i gang gikk gjennomføringen fint.

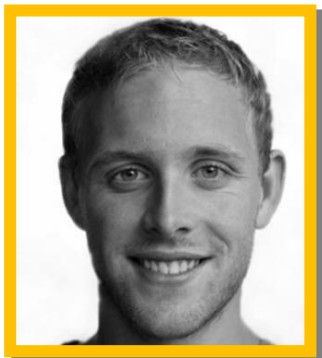

Format, oppgaver og resultater skal nå evalueres før første offisielle OSCE skal gjennomføres for kull 15 20. juni 2018.
